

Title: The Greatness of God

9.04.11

Did you know that the light from the sun or from a white electric bulb is actually made up of all the colors that can be seen by the human eye? Although we can't see the individual colors they are present in the light. The rainbows we sometimes see in the sky actually reveal the various properties of sunlight. When sunlight shines on raindrops in just the right way, the sunlight is bent as it moves through the drops. It spreads out and is reflected back to us as a colorful rainbow in the sky. Just as sunlight consists of a combination of colors, so God is made up of many character traits. There are times in which we can see these attributes shining through as He interacts with mankind. The "Spectrum" series is about exploring some of those characteristics of God with a view to see Him more clearly and then worship Him more passionately.
