

We value asking questions to better understand how to live life in a God-centered, Christ-exalting way. We believe that church should be the place in which people can get solid answers to life's questions.

The following are today's questions:

1. If I speed when I drive, am I sinning against God?
2. In Matthew 6:33 it says, "But seek first the kingdom of God and his righteousness, and all these things will be added to you." The "things" in the context seems to be the "stuff of life" – food, clothing, etc. However, I have recently been reading about first century believers as well as missionaries who have been NOT been given "things" and, as a matter of fact have been deprived of "these things" to the point of causing their death. I know Jesus is faithful so I must be missing something here.
3. When does someone become a "false prophet" (Matt. 7:15) vs. a Bible study leader or even a pastor who is not teaching the correct meaning of a passage or is wrong on a topic due to a faulty interpretation?
4. Should Christians get involved in social issues or keep THE issue about the Gospel only in order to avoid unnecessary conflict or mudding the waters with those we are trying to reach with the Gospel? I really want my co-workers to not be distracted by non-essentials... they need Jesus badly and not another voice on social issues like same-sex marriage or politics. How do I keep the main thing the main thing?
